This website is a good result, it is like how I wanted it to look in the first part of these assignments, and with the added knowledge of website development it turned out nice and is even responsive and looks nice on most devices. From how it looked in the beginning to now it is a large change and a nice glow up to the format of the website. How it turned out, I will be able to use it as a personal portfolio if I change some of the internal text to match with things, I want my future employers to see. But now with my better knowledge of the design process and coding I would change the way the code is structured so that it is easier to use and use some specific CSS selectors to help target certain elements easier instead of some methods I used within the style file which made it look cluttered.
